

Grayling—A "new look" has arrived at 76,000-acre Camp Grayling Training Center of the Michigan National Guard.

Approximately 2,500 teen-age youths, most of them just out of high school, are getting their first experience in military training here.

When Congress resorted to compulsory military training (Selective Training) as the only effective way of manning the army and navy, the National Guard was given a preferred status. Youths who enlisted in State Troops were exempted from the draft.

Like having a gold rush on its hands, the Michigan National Guard recruited 2,500 teen-agers in 30 days. Total enrollment soared to 7,300, an all-time record. The troops arrived at Lake Margrethe last week in more than 1,000 motor vehicles and 200 rail-road cars. They were reviewed last Saturday (Aug. 14) by Governor Kim Sigler and Major General Ralph A. Loveland and this Saturday (Aug. 21) following a week of over night bivouacs and field exercises, the troops will depart for home.

The "new look" at Camp Grayling is as fresh as today's newspaper headlines.

Youth is getting its first peace-time military training as a part of national security. The atmosphere is hardly that of a holiday although the traditional banter and horse-play of army life is as noticeable as ever. The Berlin crisis (Continued on Page 4)

A Little of This and That in OUR TOWN

Michigan's swiftest moving offensive and defensive army, the Michigan Air Guard has just completed two weeks training at the Grayling McNamara Airport. Equipped with F 51 fighter planes (known popularly as Mustangs) and B-24 light bombers (known as Invaders) as well as several types of training ships both single and dual motored and the big C-47 transports, the Guard Air Arm moved into Grayling with three fighter squadrons, a bombardment squadron and an Air Service Group.

On Friday, the fighters and bombers simulated an attack on the United States Coast Guard ice crusher, the Mackinac Island Straits of Mackinac which carried Governor Kim Sigler and other State officials and newsmen to the festival at St. Ignace celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Michigan State Ferry fleet.

On Saturday, the bombers, fighters and liaison planes took off from the concrete runways of McNamara Airport to fly in review over the troops of the 46th Division at Camp Grayling who were drawn up in parade formation before Governor Sigler and Major General Ralph A. Loveland, commander of the Michigan National Guard.

Your editor was afforded a bay window view as he rode in the bombardier's seat, the plexi-glass nose of a flight of 18 of the big two motored ships. Wheeling north from the airport and drawing into formation, the flight of nine of the roaring craft were joined by nine more from the Illinois Guard before they swept over the review field in perfect formation. After passing over the troops, the bomber formation continued southward over Midland, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint, Pontiac to Detroit. Wheeling high over the Detroit River, Illinois Ambassador Bridge they then turned west high over Willow Run, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor where the Illinois planes banked away from the formation and headed home to their home base.

The amazing thing of the flight was the terrific line eating pace that the formation kept up. Scheduled over the review field at exactly 2:01 P. M., as the Governor mounted the reviewing stand, the bombers after what seemed aimless circling arrived on the dot much to our amazement as we checked our wrist watch. Later as Flint loomed out of the smoke ahead of us, we checked our watch and found it was 2:25. From Grayling to Flint in 24 minutes is real traveling.

The Air Guard is the National Guard's youngest branch of service and as would be expected are staffed by young men. Every flying officer in the Michigan National Guard has seen combat service overseas. Twenty-five percent of the ground and service crews spent time overseas in service. The remainder are the 17 to 21 year old group.

The people of Michigan can well be proud of the record that the Michigan Air Guard has set. Only once during the two weeks of intensive flying at Grayling when as many as 50 to 60 planes would be in the air at once. We'll welcome a little more quiet sky, but we won't forget the Michigan Air Guard—and we'll be looking forward to their visit next year.

The people of Michigan can well be proud of the record that its Michigan Air Guard has to its credit. Only one minor accident occurred during the two weeks of intensive flying at Grayling when as many as 50 to 60 planes would be in the air at once. Well, welcome a little more quiet sky, welcome a little more of the Michigan but, we won't forget the Michigan Air Guard—and we'll be looking forward to their visit next year.

Governor's Day Program Marks High Spot Of Encampment

Guard In Final Days of Training

Saturday, the third anniversary of VJ-Day, was celebrated at Camp Grayling with a massing of troops, tanks, jeeps, gun carriers and fighter and bomber planes, the equal of any such gathering in the nation.

The massed strength of the Michigan National Guard marched in review before Governor Kim Sigler, Major General Ralph A. Loveland, commanding general, Brig. General George C. Moran, state adjutant general, and other high Guard officers and State dignitaries.

Governor Sigler arrived at the Grayling McNamara Air port Saturday morning via his private plane from St. Ignace and was received by General Loveland and General Moran. Following an inspection of the Michigan Air Guard, the governor moved on to Camp Grayling, where he was greeted by a 19 gun salute fired from Division Hill. He was then conducted on a complete tour of the camp installations and stopped briefly to inspect several organizations even to aiding Pvt. Francis Shoemaker of Jackson in peeling "spuds."

The review got underway at exactly 2 P. M. (1400 hours Army time) with the fighters and bombers of the Michigan Air Guard and small liaison planes of the 46th Division passing in a criss-cross pattern over the troops on the review field. The marching ranks of the 46th Division passed before the reviewing stand for two hours bringing applause from the thousands of spectators and highly favorable comment from Governor Sigler.

Saturday evening, the Commanding General's reception for the Governor was held at the Officer's Club. Gov. Sigler and daughter, Madelon, Gen. and Mrs. Loveland, Gen. and Mrs. Moran,

Legion Show Uncovers Young Local Talent

"Fun For You" sponsored by the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps and directed by Emily Hull and given at the High School last Wednesday and Thursday night furnished further proof that Grayling has a great many talented young people. While it is impossible to mention every one taking part in the cast some outstanding acts and solos of the evening were: Marlene Sorenson in the role of Minnie Pearl; Bob Johnson as Dr. I. Q.; Lewis Stillwagon taking the part of the famed Uncle Ezra and also doubling in the part of Gary Moore in the Tom Brannaman show. Skip Gale, president of the corps, playing the Duke of Paducah; Bill Johnson doing a grand job of announcing. June Gross singing "Star Spangled Banner," Gloria Moore "Indian Love Call," Joyce Hoerl "I Don't Know" and Pat Stephan "Golden Barring."

Twila Sorenson won first prize in the baby contest, Anna K. Johnson was second and Bruce Gale third with Shirley Silene and Sharron Madsen receiving honorable mention.

The corps wishes to thank all for their help, especially Mrs. June Gross and the Rhythm King Orchestra.

Reunion Night
I'd love to attend. I enjoy a dance but frankly I can't take a chance I'm short of wind. I creak at the joints.

Just falling apart at several points.
After receiving a recent check Doc Keyport sez. "You're a sorry wreck."

There was a time not long ago (When I was in my prime you know) I could shake a leg with any gent. Now my feet are flat and my back is bent.

Old Father time has laid me low. I'm sorry gals but I can't go. But I'm not leaving you in the lurch.

Here's a five spot for the Lovells' lunch.
With the shape I'm in I can't afford.

To risk my credit with the Lord. He's never failed. He never will. So long it's time to take my pill.

Just one thing more I'd like to stress.
I hope your dance is a big success.

Yours truly,
A. J. Copeland.

Liquidating The Middle Class

An economic review published by one of the country's leading banks recently touched on a phase of inflation that must be given a great deal more thought than it has received so far. It said, "Month by month, year by year, people who have been considered, with justice, the mainstay of our society—the great middle class—have been rewarded for their prudence and self-reliance in steadily depreciating coin. These are the people who save for retirement, for the rainy day, for family security, as best they can with the resources at their disposal. They are the people who responded most generously to the calls for funds in the loan drives of the war emergency. They are the people who pay most of the taxes. They are the people who provide wise leadership in community life. It is a dangerous business to grind them down, take away their incentives, frustrate their efforts toward security."

"Back of this inflationary trend are government policies of spending, lending and guaranteeing which, more than any other single factor, have been responsible for our taut economy and for the spiraling of prices. The irony of it is that so much of this spending is pressed in the name of social welfare and liberalism. Yet those who see in such spending the menace to the security and freedom of the individual are classed as insensible to humanitarian considerations."

It is sometimes argued that the enormous commitments of the government—such as those for military purposes and European aid—make any worth while reduction in the budget impossible. That is not so. The unparalleled magnitude of necessary spending should cause the utmost intensification of efforts to cut unnecessary spending to the last possible dollar.

Government-inspired inflation, along with all the other ills that it creates, is the most insidious enemy of freedom that exists. The economic liquidation of the middle class is just one of the symptoms.

New Tests Determine Nutrition Needs

In the near future, children's report cards may include a mark in nutrition—a mark which is as accurate, and even more easily determined, than grades in reading, writing and arithmetic. That, at least, is the conclusion of State Senator Thomas C. Desmond, New York who was chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Nutrition from 1942 to 1947.

In a recent article in Hygeia, health magazine of the American Medical Association, Mr. Desmond tells about certain physiological tests which were developed by Dr. Otto A. Bessey and Dr. Oliver H. Lowry of New York City. The new tests, involving the analysis of small samples of blood by chemical methods, make it possible to find out exactly what every individual child needs for the best nutrition. When 750 children from a number of schools in New York State were tested, the results showed that not a single group was free from some deficiency. For example, 58.2% of the children in the upstate schools, and 43% of those in the city, failed to get an adequate rating in carotene, which is a factor in Vitamin A. In ascorbic acid, or Vitamin C, 59% upstate and 48.9% in New York City fell below an adequate rating. Since both of these food essentials are found in fresh fruits and green and yellow vegetables, the tests showed that parents are not supplying enough of such foods to their children.

As the Hygeia article points out, while the microchemical techniques of Doctors Bessey and Lowry may not be the final word in nutritional testing, they do for the first time make possible the laboratory determination of the nutritional status of large population groups. Further research in developing such techniques will open up vast possibilities in the prevention of illness and disease.

The first American to engage in meat packing was William Pynchon, of Springfield, Mass., who in 1655 started to drive cattle to Boston.

MICHIGAN

Believes in Promoting Rural Health

Rural health is a great deal more than a discussion topic to the medical doctors of Michigan—it is a vital program that has their fullest support. This is evidenced in many ways, as will be brought out at the Michigan Rural Health Conference which is to be held at Michigan State College, September 16-17. Being one of the sponsors, Michigan doctors of medicine will utilize this Conference to search out the further avenues in which they can most practically enlarge their health services in Michigan's rural areas. This concern of organized medicine, and many other health organizations, with the health improvement of all the people of the State is one of the reasons why Michigan leads the way in health progress.

Freedom Train

State Bar of Michigan Calls For Rededication To American Way of Life

"Troubling times offer a constructive challenge, an opportunity to make progress," said Harry G. Gault, Flint, President of the State Bar of Michigan, "if we meet the challenge with a well founded knowledge of and belief in the principles which have made America great. It is the purpose of the Freedom Train to bring home to all of us heightened awareness of our rights, privileges and responsibilities as Americans."

The statement came in answer to a question about the visit of the Freedom Train to Michigan which starts in Kalamazoo on Friday, August 19. The tour of the Freedom Train is a project of the American Heritage Foundation. The train carries impressive exhibits of famous documents which have secured freedom in this country. The importance of its visit was emphasized in the August issue of the MICHIGAN STATE BAR JOURNAL which devoted its cover and editorial pages to the train and its significance. Sheldon S. Dickinson, Detroit, Chairman of the State Bar Committee on American Citizenship, in an editorial called upon local bar associations to give their time and support to the activities surrounding the visit of the train, adding that:

"Freedom is everybody's business... The documents of the Freedom Train serve to remind us that the struggle for Freedom is an ancient one. Its maintenance has always required earnestness, resolution and sacrifice... continued resolution and sacrifice is required in the present and will always be required in times to come."

The tour of the Freedom Train is the longest tour in American history. It began in Philadelphia on September 17 and its 38,000-mile year-long journey will take it into every state in the union. Prior to the visit of the train to each community, a Week of Rededication is held in which citizens of all age groups rededicate themselves to the American heritage, and pledge themselves to active observance of their rights as citizens. Admission to the Freedom

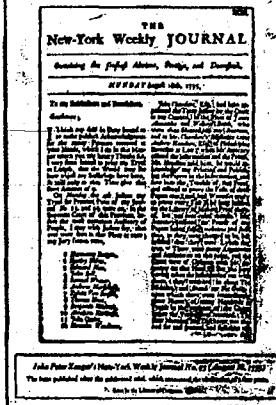

Exhibit of John Peter Zenger's letter published in 1735, announcing the visit of a free press.

Train is free and everyone is invited to go aboard to view the famous documents. Some of the exhibits are:

The Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, George Washington's Farewell Address, the Treaty of Paris, and others.

and other world events have cast a shadow. War is still a serious business.

Military discipline is being tightened this year. And yet, according to top command, more emphasis is being put upon recreation than ever before. Soft ball games are held daily. Free motion pictures, latest from Hollywood, are offered each evening. The 48th Infantry Division Band is kept busy playing for regimental reviews and special concerts. Church attendance is compulsory. Military police units patrol the streets in Grayling. The "brig" is the latest punishment. It is apparent that General Loveland and his staff are making every effort to provide a dose of military training for teen-agers that will be acceptable to fathers and mothers back home.

The atmosphere is a bit informal to an old-time army man, uniforms of officers are just about the same as those of the buck privates. The insignia of rank is unchanged. Saluting is maintained on a voluntary basis. There is less military swank. All this reflects the "new look" of youth and a determination of the military command to make selective service a permanent part of our national defense policy, subject to approval of public opinion. The National Guard units have deep roots in Michigan communities. Officers are watching with interest the congressional outcome of a move at Washington to put the National Guard under federal control. The feeling of opposition is running high here.

Col. Edward R. Roberts, senior U. S. Army instructor on duty here, diplomatically pointed out that National Guard divisions were not given "soft jobs" in World War II. The 48th Army Division (Oklahoma) suffered the second highest casualty rating in the war during its service in Italy and Europe. The 32nd Division (Michigan-Wisconsin) was first in action in the southwest Pacific, while the 39th Division (Maryland and Virginia) were among the first troops to land in Normandy.

The ground units at Grayling comprise the 48th Infantry Division. "The air units are part of the Tenth Air Force."

On the ground and in the air, Michigan is doing its part to be ready for whatever the future may bring. Camp Grayling is a symbol of this preparedness.

St. Ignace—This Upper Peninsula port, whose historic heritage dates back to 1876—just an even century before the Declaration of Independence was written—is celebrating its home coming and 25th anniversary of the Michigan State Ferry service last week end. The event had all the trimmings of a modern Michigan festival, so loved by summer tourists.

A queen was crowned "Miss Straits of Mackinac." Dignitaries made speeches for the record at least. The Coast Guard cutter, Mackinaw, too, bigging on Friday evening for a buffet dinner cruise, and there was a moonlight boat ride and dance aboard the S. S. Straits of Mackinac. A swimming race from British landing on Mackinac Island to St. Ignace was another news-making attraction.

And finally, the Cut River bridge long under construction west of St. Ignace, on US-27 was officially opened Sunday by Governor Kim Sigler, Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, and Congressman Charles E. Potter.

All these characteristics of a Michigan holiday serve to emphasize an interesting point, as we see it.

More than any other one thing, Michigan is unique as a summer tourist playground because of its Great Lakes, its many miles of shoreline, and its abundance of big water.

The St. Lawrence waterway, plus the Great Lakes, made possible the founding of St. Ignace in 1876 by Father Marquette, a Jesuit missionary from France. Six years later, the French selected Point St. Ignace as a site for Fort Michillimackinac—a fact usually forgotten by travelers who visit the reconstructed fort at Mackinaw City. It was 1712 that the French fort was moved to the south side of the Straits, across from St. Ignace. The threat of George Rogers Clark, after the Revolutionary war when the British contested for possession of the North West, prompted the Redcoats to move the fort in 1780 to Mackinaw Island.

The beginnings of Mackinac, a name originally given to the country bordering on the straits, were at Point St. Ignace on the Upper Peninsula side.

St. Ignace is verily a real "whistle stop."

The ferry boats, while coming and going, Economic life of the community is linked by the flow of commerce across the Straits. It is a lively place. During warm summer months the lines of automobiles grow long as Mid-West visitors patiently await arrival and loading of the next ferry boat. In the Fall the deer hunters, laden with guns and equipment, jam the town, northbound for camp.

Huron and Lake Michigan.

Michigan's Great Lakes also are the tombs of hundreds of vessels and thousands of men and women. Even modern science and its radar—miracle discovery of World War II—have not overcome the perils of the deep.

Capt. Russell Bergh, commanding officer of the Coast Guard Cutter, Sundew, brought this grim fact to our attention during a fog bound cruise from Charlevoix to Beaver Island on Sunday, June 27. Aboard were 24 Michigan newspaper editors and members of their families, all bound for St. James to attend dedication of the marker at the Old Mormon Printing House.

Captain Bergh, a veteran seaman of Norwegian descent, was proud of the boat's radar. In a magic circle a revolving beam illuminated anything two feet above the surface of the water—land or boats. Then the radar equipment jammed due to reasons beyond the operator's controls. Outside, the fog was thick as soup. Seamen resorted to the ancient method of sounding for depth. Finally as the cutter drifted dangerously into shallow water, Captain Bergh sent a radio appeal to the Coast Guard station at St. James, and a picket boat hurried out to guide the cutter into harbor.

You recall incidents, such as this, when you behold the Straits of Mackinac. Drama rides the Great Lakes. It is a vibrant part of Michigan.

Above are several views of the present Michigan State Ferry fleet of four boats—the City of Petolety, City of Munising, City of Cheboygan and the Straits of Mackinac—operating between St. Ignace and Mackinaw City. At the left is the "Ariel" which inaugurated the ferry service 25 years ago. The silver anniversary of this link between Michigan's two peninsulas will be observed August 13-15 at St. Ignace with a complete program of events. On Sunday, August 15, there will be ceremonies opening the new scenic section of US-2 at the Cut River west of St. Ignace. Governor Kim Sigler, Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, and Congressman John Bennett, of Ontonagon, will speak. Miss Straits of Mackinac will cut the ribbon to officially open the new highway and bridge to traffic.

SHORT STORY

Duel
For ClariceBy
KATHRYN POOR

"COME, Rafe," said Rufus, "we've got to thrash this out."

"You bet. If we have to split, let's face it chin up, Rufe. Let's go up to the Roost."

Rufus and Rafe were the red-headed Randal twins, aged 17. The Roost was their private sanctum in the barn loft.

"Rafe," Rufe began, his voice trembling, "this is hard. We haven't had girl trouble before. We don't know which one she'll like. I know she's the only girl for me and if she doesn't choose me, I'll have to go away and become a world wanderer or a sailor or something." He sighed.

"Yep," his brother answered, "the way she stuck to us at the party showed we made a great hit. She didn't expect to meet anybody like us out here in the country."

"Gosh, can't you see her? That gorgeous black hair, eyes swimming in beauty. Like soft velvet— you know, like that gown of Ma's, her grace, her sweet and gentle voice like trees murmuring in the breeze, her tones of sweetest music 'tearing up my heart.'"

"Just where did you get that?" "Read some poetry. Takes you right off the earth. Eyes of moonlight, teeth of pearl, hair of midnight, peerless girl."

"Say, what was Nancy telling you last night?" "She said I was a moonstruck ass and I said she little knew the pangs of love. The wound by Cupid's dart shot out to kill, for her sweet sake my blood I'll spill. Oh! When I think what's happened to me!"

"Me too— She almost said right out she was loving her heart." "She said that to me too—Clarice."

"Rufe rolled the word out—'Isn't it a wonderful name? Just fits her. Did you call her Clarice?'" "She asked me to. Sweet name. My sweet Clarice."

"You're a fast worker, boy. Listen! It rests so sweetly in my heart, the gentle name Clarice. I dream of when she will be mine, to love, adore, caress."

"By jinks, Rafe, do you s'pose we'll turn into poets?" Rufe was startled.

"Love will do anything. Think she'll want us to dye our hair?" "She said she loved our hair. Showed great personality, was very distinctive."

"Listen, there's a car. Can you see who it is?" "Gosh, Rufe, it's her—Clarice. She's come to see us."

A car was entering the driveway. In it was a vivid, black-haired girl. Her companion was a serious-looking young man with a likable smile, several years older than herself. She called: "Yoo-hoo—anybody home?" Rufus and Rafe came from the barn trailing hay and straw.

Three men in her life?

"Oh, hello, boys," she said. "I'm going home tomorrow and wanted to say goodbye. This is my fiancé, Alan Gordon. Alan, Rufus and Rafe, they were sweet to me at Mona's party. I had such a lovely time."

"That was very nice of you. Glad to meet you both," smiled the intruder. Clarice said: "We'll have to go. Alan came to take me home. We're going to be married next week. Look us up when you come to town. Goodbye and good luck!"

Handwaving, they drove away. "Clarice, that's quite a pair," said Alan. "Unusual, one might say."

"You see why I wanted you to meet them. But Alan—" with a side-long glance, "I did have a good time."

"I imagine you did," he said with an amused laugh. "I'm ashamed of you."

The twins stared at each other for several minutes after the visitors had gone. Then in perfect unison they ejaculated, "Women!"

"Rafe, let's go fishing tomorrow."

"Let's," said Rafe. They looked at each other sorrowfully. Then simultaneously they burst into loud laughter.
